Dan Whedon of Kirkland dressed as Uncle Sam yesterday, complete with a top hat that carried a message for Senator Henry M. Jackson: "I Want You" for President. Whedon was one of 300 Jackson supporters who gathered at the Washington Plaza Hotel to hear Jackson's political plans. Jackson announced he would end active campaigning for the Democratic presidential nomination and would seek re-election to the United States Senate. — Staff photo by Greg Gilbert. 'Parallax view

Stephen Selipsky, 12, a student at the Evergreen School for the Gifted, formed a triangle with his hands as he wrestled with the word "parallax" in an early round of yesterday's Seattle-area regional spelling bee. He spelled that word correctly, but later slipped on "speliology" to finish eighth out of 106 finalists. — Staff photo by Richard S. Heyza. (Details, D 9.)
